Dear Terry and Co.,
Re: MCP #111
...Still waiting for Len Biehl.

Covers: A pair of good ones, as usual. Steve Lightle is one of the best, as is Sam Kieth. Although neither were "Gosh-gotta-be-posters" type material, they were still quite good. 2 1/4 Claws.

Wolverine: I'm a little confused. Not being a regular reader of DAREDEVIL, I'm not a Typhoid Mary expert. Am I correct in assuming she's a little schizo? In any case, she's got our little hairy X-Man in a pinch, doesn't she? Steve Lightle is a great artist. 2 3/4 Claws (but only because of a moment or two of confusion).

Iron Fist: I'm relatively new to comics. It's been about three years since my first, so, I'm not too familiar with the type of stories Iron Fist inspires. Anyway, this type of story doesn't thrill me. Sorry. 1/2 Claw.

To quote Mike Farmer, FLIP!

The Ghost Rider yarn continues on its merry little way. I felt a little sorry for Lupe (not getting to be herself, and when she is, she gets killed...). Anyway, this is an interesting predicament our heroes are in. 3 Claws.

Thanos: Although this story seemed anticlimactic, it showed us a lot about Thanos' mind set. Some great character development and some great moody art, too. 3 Claws.

Any firm issue number yet on the Venom/Wolvie story? I'm in eager anticipation!

We've got some great news for you, Augie—and everyone else who's been bombarding us with the same question... Howard Mackie and Sam Kieth's Wolverine/Venom story begins in our very next issue!

Dear Marvelites,

The third part of the brilliant "Typhoid's Kiss" storyline was a magnificent blend of fine writing and art.

An effective use of shadows throughout and an inventive placement of silhouettes magnified the suspense and tension that has been building since the first segment.

I had been kept guessing on so many facets of the story thus far that it never occurred to me that Wolverine's mysterious companion was, in fact, Typhoid Mary. Surprise!

MARVEL COMICS PRESENTS #111 included some outstanding entries besides this feature, but none that held me quite so spellbound.

Dear Terry,

Wow.

Reading the first three chapters of "Typhoid's Kiss" (as seen in MARVEL COMICS PRESENTS #s 109-111) has made me realize just how much I miss Ann Nocenti's writing. C'mon, gang, let's get her back on a regular series!
